

Fill the Data Gap on Asian Americans: Pew Research Center's Being Asian in America Project

Neil G. Ruiz, PhD

Associate Director of
Race and Ethnicity Research,
Pew Research Center

The Asian American Research Center on Health (ARCH) invites you to a special webinar focused on the Pew Research Center's Being Asian in America project which is the largest focus group study Pew Research Center has ever conducted – 66 focus groups (conducted in 18 languages) with 264 total participants – to hear Asian Americans talk about their lived experiences in America.

Dr. Neil G. Ruiz, a political economist and associate director of race and ethnicity research at the Pew Research Center, will speak on this work and engage in discussion with attendees about the implications and next steps of the project.
